Twenty-Four Classic Closing Arguments in Kentucky Civil Cases 1997-1999

For the first time in fourteen years, Classic Closing Arguments That Win is back. The content is simple enough . . . but absolutely essential. It contains 24 closing arguments from the late 1990s. And not just any arguments. It was winners by some of Kentucky's best lawyers. The verbatim arguments with a description of the underlying case for context. Who is in the book?

The legendary Gary Johnson from Pikeville. William McMurry has two cases. The late great Brent Travelsted defines pain and suffering in the most unique way from a $1.598 million car wreck case. Douglas Morris from a large sexual harassment case. The book also has a civil closing argument ($101,000 car wreck case) by noted criminal defense lawyer Steven Romines.

And the kicker. Classic Closing Arguments has Mark Gray's famous 1998 Johnson v. Humana closing argument in the case where the insurer refused to pay for a woman's hysterectomy – the trial resulted in a $13.1 million dollar verdict.

If you saw this volume the first time around, it's probably still in your library and it's worth a read every time you prepare for trial. If you missed it 1999 or you hadn't even started law school at that time, now is the chance to get it. Many consider it the most important book we've ever done. A cover-to-cover must read. Use this form to order.
